++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A drab morning, brighter later.

Today:
A misty start this morning, remaining generally cloudy with limited brightness. Low cloud, hill fog and patchy drizzle will gradually fade though the morning, with brighter spells and sunny intervals developing in the afternoon. Light winds. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud increasing from the northwest this evening, replacing any clear spells with cloudy conditions for all overnight. Light rain and hill fog arriving over the Cheviots by dawn. Light winds. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Monday:
Mostly cloudy through Monday, with outbreaks of light rain and drizzle likely, especially over the Cheviots and Pennines where hill fog will linger. Winds remaining light. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
A cloudy day Tuesday with outbreaks of rain. Wednesday drier and brighter, but hill fog developing, feeling cooler as winds strengthen. Cloudy with strong winds and rain Thursday.
